

What license covers the JavaDoc?

- 1) Is the JavaDoc an integral part of the RI distribution licensed under the RI license?
- 2) Does the JavaDoc ordinarily = the Specification?
- 3) Could you create a compliant independent implementation solely from the information in the JavaDoc?
- 4) If you simultaneously make identical material available to the same licensee under a permissive license and a restrictive license, can you reasonably expect to legally enforce the restrictive terms?
- 5) If the JavaDoc is reviewed as part of the RI distribution (i.e, not extracted from the rest of the execution code), is it reasonable to believe you received the JavaDoc material under the RI license?
- 6) Can you create a legally redistributable code file that is licensed under the GPL license where a subset of the material is licensed under a non-GPL license?