JavaOne 2010

You've Entered...the Zone

The Zone—San Francisco's Hotel Nikko, Hilton San Francisco, and Parc 55 hotels and the surrounding area—is dedicated to you during the week of JavaOne. Network, share information, and learn from leading experts in the Java community—in a unique neighborhood created with developers in mind. Add to your learning by exploring the collocated Oracle Develop conference, with hundreds of additional sessions for Java developers to explore.

Welcome to JavaOne!

Welcome to this year's JavaOne conference! We are glad you dropped by. We want to keep you informed of all the happenings around JavaOne, all the events leading up to the conference and all the events during the conference week itself. We'll cover announcements, news, planning (but we won't make you go to any meetings), and snafus (nothing that makes us look too bad, of course). We'll even throw in a contest or two to make sure you are paying attention. We'll post a couple of times a week, and then more frequently as we get closer to September. There's a group of us, and we cover the Java beat, JUGs, Oracle Technology Network, Oracle Solaris, and lots more. What do you want to hear about? Let us know.

A group of us from the office went to see the movie Iron Man 2 (it just debuted in the United States) last week and it reminded us of Java, the Java community, and JavaOne. In all three cases, from many disparate (and sometimes seemingly incompatible) parts and people, something comes together that works, is cool, and helps make a better world. Right now, there are hundreds of little islands of planning, all busy answering questions for JavaOne: What sessions get selected? What goes in the Mason street tent (until a few weeks ago, Will there be a tent on Mason street?), What do the JUGs need? Which Oracle ACEs will be there? Can we do a surf theme at the OTN party? And, somehow, like an Iron Man suit, they all come together and work to make a great event. At least, we hope it will be great. That's for you to decide. Please don't be shy—give us your comments and suggestions. We'll be listening.

You've Entered... the Zone

The Zone—San Francisco's Hotel Nikko, Hilton San Francisco, and Parc 55 hotels and the surrounding area—is dedicated to you during the week of Oracle Develop conference. Network, share information, and learn from experts in the PL/SQL, rich enterprise applications, SOA communities, and more. Add to your learning by exploring the collocated JavaOne conference, with hundreds of additional Java-focused sessions for you to explore.

Go Big or Go Home

The Oracle Develop conference (#OracleDevelop10), being co-located for the first time ever with JavaOne in San Francisco, is guaranteed to be the ultimate rush for developers this year. Where else can you go to learn about, interact with, and meet fellow devotees of the entire Oracle Development stack (welcome, Oracle Solaris)?

This will also be the first time that the community space traditionally located at Oracle OpenWorld - and hosted by Oracle Technology Network, as always - will be present at the "developer" conference during this busy week. So, Oracle OpenWorld's loss is Oracle Develop's gain...
